"PEACE BY AGREEMENT" "Great Britain does not desire peace by agreement and understanding, but only a conclusion of the war, which means the enslavement of Germany to the arbitrary violence of our enemies,

Thus does Dr. Georg Michaelis, imperial German chancellor, reply to re cent British statements of Britain's purpose in the war. His last clause demands no discussion. The enslavement of seventy million people is, of course, impossible, and neither Great Britain nor her allies have dreamed of it. They fight, rather, to free the world, including Germany, from Prussian militarism.

Great Britain-and her allies are in accord with her-does not desire peace by agreement and understand The nations which fight the battle of democracy do desire "the conclusion of the war." They hope that it will be the last war, and in that hope they fight.

Enough on that.

"Peace by agreement and under standing" implies peace by compromises, and there can be no compromise between democracy and autocracy. It means a peace of bargainings and barter, of weighing this bit of territory against that colony, of this window on the sea against that concession in some backward continent. It means a peace made by the Prussian government rather than by the German people, a peace pregnant with the threat

German papers make this plain. The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger declares that "aside from a handful of dreamers," nobody thinks of the restoration of Belgium, The Cologne Volkszeitung insists upon the retention of Belgium and upon annexations in the east, and other governmental organs are in ac-cord. Their prgoram, like that of Chancellor Michaelis, is far more pretentious than that of "peace without any indemnities," in itself sufficiently acing to future generations.

Robert Lansing, American secretary of state, discusses peace possibilities in a way more satisfactory to the entente allies. He regards peace as im-possible "until the physical might of united democracise of the world has destroyed forever the evil ambitions of the military rulers of Ger-

With President Wilson he would see the world "made safe for democracy." The peace which accomplishes that will not be the kind of peace Dr. Michacils magnanimously suggests. But it will be a peace for all time.—Cleve-land Plain Dealer.

DRASTIC COAL AMENDMENT

ADOPTED Coal consumers had their innings the United States Senate Saturday afternoon when the drastic Coal Amendment to the Food Bill proposed and championed by Senator Pomerene was adopted by an overwhelming vote. Under this Amendment coal operators are given the option of conducting their business in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed mines over to the government. Every consumer of coal throughout the country will be interested in the provision of the Pomerene, Amendment. It empowers the President "to fix the price of coal wherever and whenever sold, either by producer or dealer", and to draft rules "to regulate the method of sale, transportation, distribution, apportionment or storage thereof among merchants and consumers, domestic or foreign."

Any time the President becomes convinced operators or dealers are failing or neglecting to live up to the rules and regulations he has formulat-ed, he may "requisition and take over the plant, business, and all appurtenances thereof" of such operators or dealers and operate the same personally or through some other Government agency.

There is an alternative provision in the Amendment empowering the President, if in his judgment it is advisable, to take over the coal interests of the entire Country, either in part or in whole, in the name of the Government. In other words, the alternative, put up to the operators is Government Ownership. Senator Pomerene does not believe Government Own ership will be necessary. Some of the Senators who supported his Amendment believe it will be necessary. Sen-ator Pomerene is of the opinion the coal operators will "come to" when they waken up to a realization of the real meaning of his Amendment. That part of the Amendment authorizing Government Ownership contains these two significant provisions:

First: "In fixing maximum prices for producers the commission (authorized by the President) shall allow the cost of production, including the expense of operation, maintenance, depreciation, and depletion, and shall add thereto a just and reasonable

Second: "In fixing such prices for dealers, the commission (authorized by the President) shall allow the cost to the dealer and shall add thereto a just and reasonable sum for his ser-voies in the transaction. There shall be but one such dealer between the producer and consumer or user."

It will be noted that this last sentence eliminates all middlemen-but one-between the operator and the consumer. This is not the last important feature of the Pomerene Amendment from the standpoint of the millions of workingmen of moderate means who purchase coal for purely domestic purposes.

Finally, the Amendment applies to coke, as well as coal—grants operators or dealers the right to sue through the Courts if not satisfied with the Government's terms-provides a five thousand dollar fine or three years imrisonment, or both, for offenders, for each separate offense-sets forth specifically that none of its provisions shall be construed to restrict or modithe rights of the Government or any of its Allies "to purchase, requisition, or take over commodities for the equipment, maintenance, or support Germany 29, and in Russia only about of armed forces"—and may be enforced "during the period of the war and one year thereaftre, or for such Some strange shifts are being re-surted to by the railways to p. vide dent's) judgment may be necessary."

The local force consists of six Polish women, all of whom have been working on farms west of South Bend. Section gangs of women are also being worked east of Elkhart. Scarcity of male help is given as the reason for employment of the women.

It has been said that if the war were settled by a peace based on today's war map the Germans would gain immensely. A French authority takes exception to this view. He points out that if Germany were granted the territory she has seized, she would hold Belgium, Serbin, Poland, the seven northern departments of France and probably Montenegro-a total area of 390,400 square kilometers. The allies on the other hand have taken from Germany Togoland, Kamerun, German Southwest Africa, German East Africa, the Bismarck Archipelago, the Caroline islands, the German islands of the Samoan group, Kiao Chao, and territory in Galicia, Bu-
